and to some that is a happy lot, while to others it isn't.

"The policeman is subject to all kinds of duty. He has no time at home except that he has a day and a night with his family once a month, and what is called a day off every forty-eight hours. But the day off is preceded by six hours of patrolling, and followed by another six hours, so that though it begins sometimes at midnight and sometimes at 6 or 8 o'clock in the morning, the officer is most likely to spend it in sleep or, perhaps, in appearing before the Grand Jury or as a witness in court or in arraigning a prisoner before a Police Justice.

"I do not believe there is any other class of men subject to so much temptation of every decription as the policemen. Out in ail sorts of weather, in light or deepest darkness, I wonder that their nerve does not give out and that they do not fall by the way.

"Their hours of rest are only nominally so, for they are on reserve and may be sent to quiet a drunken husband, look after a fire, stand at a theatre door for four hours, keep the walks clear about a street fakir or Punch and Judy show, or do any one of a hundred other things. A pollceman is always on duty, and always in dauger."

POLICEMAN CROSS LIKES IT.

POLICEMAN CROSS LIKES IT. Adam Cross, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, thinks the policeman's lot is, on the whole, quite a happy one, though in his first week in uniform his einbby, boyish form was tumbled into a cellarway by a gang of hoodlums that he tried to disperse. Perhaps his good opinion of the life might have been induced by quick promotions, for he has been a sergeant since his third year on the force.

SERGT. SCHMITTBERGER THINES IT HARD. Big, broad-shouldered and great-hearted Bergt, Max Schmittberger, of the Tenderloin District, looked grave, and a big sigh escaped from his bosom as he reflected on the reporter's question.

"I think that there is no harder or more thankless task than that of the policeman," I've been a patrolman, detective and ergeant these many years, and my exper-nace has been varied.

There are odd and sometimes pleasant happenings to a copper, though. A few years ago I had one of my prisoners tumble and die in my arms at Jefferson Market Police Court.

It was Jennie O'Brien, a chambermaid at the Sturtevant House, who had been stealing. She had beart disease and the prospect of prison killed her.

"And once a colored pirl, given a lodging here, gave birth to a boy baby during the night, and she named it Max, after me.

"Billy Florence played it on was once too.

Billy Florence played it on me once, too.

A private detective brought a man in, saying he was Randolph Hastings, a famous confidence man, and that Ed Stokes would be over presently to make a complaint against

"After a while Detective Brett came in.
He shook hands cordially with Hastings, calling him Billy. I took him in a corner and saked him if he recognized the prisoner." Prisoner! said he; 'why, that's Billy Florence!"
"There's lots of excitement and some fun.

"There's lots of excitement and some fun in the policeman's life, but I don't think his lot is a happy one," concluded the big Ser-geant, "especially to a man with a wife and four children. I don't see 'em only at dinner time, and then I get excused."

JOHN GENORE SAYS "NO." John Genore, the handsome "peeler" who guides the footsteps of the ladies across Sixth avenue at Fourteenth street, night be expected to take a very cheerful view of life. But he promptly declared that the police-But he promptly declared that the policeman's lot was anything but a happy one.

"I am on duly from 8 to 6 o'clock six days in the week. I have my nights to myself, but if you crossed and recrossed this avenue in the mud three or four hundred times a day, as I do, you would hardly teel sociable or companionable when you got home to your wife at night."

Other policemen and officers were questioned, to which they gave replies as follows:

SUPT. MURRAY'S OPINION.

Supt. Murray—It is a very happy one where love of the work and a strict attention to duty prevail. Laziness and laxity in discipline make a policeman's lot a very disagreeable one to himself and his family.

DESIBABLE, SAYS INSPECTOR BYRNES. Chief Inspector Byrnes-It is and it is not. There is often great responsibility and grind-ing work that frequently makes the lot a dis-agreeable one, but in the main, a policeman's lot is very desirable.

WHAT INSPECTOR STEERS THINKS. Inspector Steers—When in pursuit of a burglar you fall from a roof and receive permanent injuries, the pleasure is stung deeply by pain, but when faithful discharge of duty is rewarded with promotion it is somewhat different. It depends upon the individual whether his lot is happy or miserable. INSPECTOR WILLIAMS'S EXPERIENCE.

Inspector Williams—My experience proves both sides of the problem. Pursued by enemies and forced to stand trial after trial, with heavy legal expenses, for imaginary errors, it is not a happy one; but when you emerge from your trials with flying colors and a higher position is awarded you, then it is the reverse. To the faithful policeman the let is full of hancings. is the reverse. To the fi

CONTENTED INSPECTOR CONLIN. CONTENTED INSPECTOR CONLIN.

Inspector Conlin—I think, generally, the let of a policeman is a happy one—at least, such is my experience. The associations are agreeable, the work is pleasant and the hope of reward is present always when duty is performed faithfully.

HAPPY SERGY, HARLEY. Sergt. Harley-Why should it not be a happy one? I have found it to be so. BOTH SIDES OF THE CASE. Sergt. J. K. Price-Well, it is bothhappy where you receive promotion, and quite the reverse where persecution forces you to go before the Commissioners on numberiess trumped-up charges of neglect of duty.

SERGT. KELLIHER HAS NO FAULT TO FIND. Sergt. Keltiher—It is a happy lot on the average. The work suits me and I have no fault to find.

DEPENDS ON THE MAN.

Property-Clerk Harriot—It is not a happy one when a man walks the pavement for a score of years without promotion. But whose fault is it? Inefficiency and lack of ambition will keep any man down. GOOD FOR VETERANS,

Chief Clerk Kipp—The lot of a police-man is a very happy one, especially if he is a veteran, for then the age of sixty years pos-sesses no terrors for him.

VERY MONOTONOUS WORK

Sergt. Farley, of the Fourth Precinct—
There is no real hard work about it, but it is very monotonous. The hours are very irregular, and he can't depend on being free to go where he likes. He never knows when he will be called to duty.

Detective Clark—Yes, it is. To be sure, there is some hard work in our line, and the hours are not confined to any stated time; but it has its advantages, like everything else.

LIPE IS WHAT THEY MAKE IT.

Officer McCabe, whose post is at the corner of Fulton and Nassau streets—The policeman's life is a happy one. Life is what we make it, and unless a person is determined to be miserable they can enjoy life a well as anybody. There are some disadvantages in our business, but, on the whose, I should may it was a happy one.

Officer Steve Dean—It is not a happy one. There is a great deal of hard work, and a man in the business is little better than a slave.

THINES IT HASY. Officer, Callahan, Fulton Market-Yes, the life is easy, and a man can enjoy himself if he wants to. I consider it easy. ANYTHING BUT HAPPY.

Officer Clarker—Happy? I should say not. It is everything else but happy. The men have to be out in all sorts of weather, and they never know when they are going to be called on to do active duty. If an officer happens to be a married man it is still worse, as the time which he can enjoy in the company of his family is exceedingly short.

DOESN'T LIKE NIGHT WORK. Officer Volk, of the Broadway Squad.—I am as happy as a clam at high tide, but night work is not likely to make the average copper

HE IS CONTENTED. Patrolman Tom Kelly, of the Fourteenth Precinct—There are many pleasant experiences in a policeman's life that go towards making him just as happy as the average man and sometimes a little happier. I feel well contented as a rule.

HAPPY BY COMPARISON. Hugh O'Rourke, of the same precinct-The policeman in a great city like ours sees so much misery and distress that I think he is generally well contented with his lot, hard Sergt, John Gallagher, of the Fourteenth Sergt, John Ganagner, of the Fourteenth Precence—When not engaged in assisting to quell a riot, lug a drunken man or woman to the station-house, stop the bullets from a burglar's pistol, or having his clothes torn off his back by some tough prisoner. I think the average copper is a happy fellow. HAS ITS DISAGREEABLE SIDES.

Peter Farney, of the Fourth Precinct—I think I feel as well contented as anybody outside the police business. Our vocation is not without its troublesome and disagreeable episodes, to say nothing of occasional dan-gers; but on the whole, I think the average policeman is a pretty jully sort of a fellow. MAKE THEMSELVES RAPPY.

John McCarthy, of the Sixth Precenct—I think you will find as big a heart in a New York policeman as in any human being. Such men make themselves contented, and I believe they are, with few exceptions, happy CONTENTED AND HAPPY.

Frank Hagan, of the Fourteenth streethave made it a point to content myself, and am, therefore, as happy as a policeman can be when not engaged in some very disagreeable duty.

SHOULD BE CONTENTED. Officer Edwards, of the Fourteenth Pre-rinct—As long as one follows the calling of a policeman he should be contented and, thereore, happy.

HAPPY, AS A BULE. Patrick Gray, of the Twentieth Precinct— As a rule, I think the life of a policeman as happy as that of any one who toils for a liv-

John Shea, of the Sixth Precinct—By con-trasting his experiences with those he daily sees in others, I believe the life of a police man is a happier one on the whole than he is generally credited with.

A DISCIPLE OF MARK TAPLEY. James Timoney, of the Fourteenth Pre-cinct—I sm happy because it is best for me. A policeman should be happy in spite of himself or any other man.

SHOULD NOT BE DISCONTENTED. Patrick Buiger, of the Fourteenth Precinct—It won't do for a policeman to be discontented and unhappy, for he sees enough misery in others to make him feel that he is not so badly off as he might be, and conse-quently he should be happy.

Joseph H. Kelly, of 215 East Thirty-fifth street, was arrested this morning for assaulting William Maxwell, of 241 East Thirty-sixth street. The two men quarrelled last night and Kelly kicked Maxwell into insensibility. The latter was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Causers an Immense Crowd.

In consequence of the extensive alterations to be made in the building 708 Broadway everything has to be closed out immediately at a sacrifice. The building is occupied by Henry Back with a large stock of fine ready-made clothing. Mr. Bach has decided to close out everything at a sacrifice, regardless of cost or quality, as he would rather seel his goods at a loss than to have them damaged by dust during the alteration. The following are a few of the bargains this will be offered at this great sale at 768 Broadway, between 8th and 10th alterets: Fine imported Black Chavlot Men's Nutts, $8.70; this suit is tailor-made-very fine and cannot be duplicated for less than $20. Fine quality Worsted and Clay Diagonal Men's Butts, $10.50; this in a high-class guit and cannot be got elsewhere for less than $25. There are two grades men's suits of the finest fabrica in Wide Wale for ascrete for $15.65 a suit. They are positively worth $30 and. Nothing liner can be got in New York. Men's Beaver Overcoats of the finest quality for $8.50. worth $25. This overcoat is limed all through with satin and the sleenes lined with sik, such a bargain news before offered in New York. It will pay you to buy clothing at this great sacrifice sale, even if you do not need it at present, as everything must be closed out before the building is altered. Don't miss this great sale at Henry Bach's, 768 Broadway, between 8th and 9th stas, New York. Store closus at 6.30 at night, except on Saturday night open till 10 o'clock.
